For well over a decade, the Lysaght-Watt Trust has been a major supporter of the South Taranaki LibraryPlus – so this year we are excited to announce them as a naming sponsor of our prestigious annual literary awards.

The Lysaght-Watt Trust Ronald Hugh Morrieson Literary Awards is, this year, celebrating its 35th year with Judges Airini Beautrais and Robert Sullivan.

South Taranaki Community Outreach Librarian Katherine Bosworth says that this move is a small way to thank the Trust for its ongoing support and generous funding. Jack and Mary Watt (nee Lysaght) left a significant portion of their respective Estates for the creation of the Lysaght Watt Trust. The Trust provides funding within Taranaki supporting Arts, Culture and Heritage and is administered by Trustees based at Halliwells in Hāwera.

Since its inception in 2008, the Trust has granted over $1 million dollars to worthy local community projects and people.

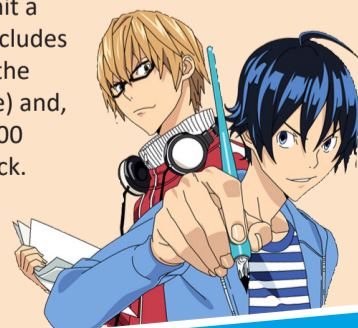

"Their ongoing support has enabled LibraryPlus staff to deliver high quality programmes to our community and invest in technologies to ensure our youth are ready to thrive in a rapidly changing digital world," says Katherine.

Registrations are now for the 2022 Open Workshops that kick off the awards each year. Poetry will be held at Hāwera LibraryPlus on Thursday 16 June at 5.30pm and Short Story will be held at TSB Hub on Saturday 18 June at 10am.
